Plüsch Creates Contemporary Seating Culture With Cor's Moss Sofa

Plüsch brings luxurious yet simple elegance to Indian homes with the COR's Moss sofa collection, the softest, most comfortable range, on which you can sit and recline equally well. Reminiscent of a sumptuous, soft, upholstered cushion, the sofa with the cuddle factor embodies the classic divan in a new way: in a modern, archaic form. The Moss sofa is a reversed version of traditional sofa shape enhanced with soft down encasements. The frame beneath is completely unobtrusive in its appearance. COR's Moss sofa by Plüsch combines maximum seating comfort with pure relaxation.

The design approach is characterized by the greatest possible comfort that upholstered furniture can offer. The monolithic body of the furniture is segmented by fine incisions and additionally accentuated by sculpture-like decorative seams. Like the large cushions with their soft, crumpled effect, the side and back sections are also gently rounded off. Another new feature is the abundance and combinations of high-quality materials, including down and padded coverings.

The under-frame in the form of delicate metal feet is barely visible, with the foundation of the 'floating' furniture body formed by a solid beech wood frame. The ample core upholstery, also on the backrests and armrests, is made of high-quality, high-volume cold foam, and the outer sections of the furniture are additionally softened with a thick layer of wadding. The crowning glory is the down encasements of the seat cushions.
